

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

Brooklyn, New York – March 28, 2009

Lights Out for Café Habana in Nolita Saturday, March 28, 2009 from 8:30-9:30 pm

If you're like most eco-friendly New Yorkers, you remember to turn off the TV, use your canvas bags when grocery shopping, and open the windows on a nice day instead of running the air conditioner.

Café Habana, located on Prince Street in Nolita, will be taking it one step further and banding together with over 1,500 cities and 80 countries in a worldwide effort to "Vote Earth!" for Earth Hour 2009. On March 28th, 2009 from 8:30 to 9:30 pm, individual households, small businesses, iconic world landmarks, and everyone in between will be turning off the lights to voice a global call to action in regards to the future and well being of our planet. Last year, participants of Earth Hour included San Francisco's Golden Gate Bridge, Rome's Colosseum, the Sydney Opera House and the Coca Cola Billboard in Times Square.

Café Habana will proudly be joining their ranks this year and shutting off the lights for one hour, all while still maintaining regular restaurant activities. Have you ever tried making a margarita in the dark? We haven't either! "Election" results are to be presented to world leaders at the Global Climate Change Conference in Copenhagen 2009. So come join us in our support of global sustainability and have a taquito and a margarita by candlelight with us.

For more information on Earth Hour 2009, please visit: www.earthhour.org.

For additional information on Café Habana please visit: www.habanaoutpost.com.