

New York's First Solar Powered Ecoeatery.

Created by artist and restaurateur Sean Meenan in 2005, Habana Outpost was built on the principle of social responsibility. Our mission is to show respect for the community, the environment and the arts in a setting that is always fun and accessible. With forward-thinking design and business practices we have created a space where neighbors can gather, learn and create.

Gather

As New York's first ecoeatery, we provide quality food in an atmosphere that is welcoming to people of all ages and backgrounds while setting an example of responsible business practices.

Learn

Habana Works Inc. is our non-profit 501c3 organization that provides free sustainability workshops using art, architecture, video and design as tools to engage people of all ages and backgrounds.

Current programs include:

-Urban Studio Brooklyn (USBK)

Urban Studio Brooklyn (USBK) provides architecture students with design/build experience by giving students an opportunity to transform environmentally minded design into fully realized physical structures. www.urbanstudiobk.com

-Habana Labs

Habana Labs is dedicated to researching, developing, and teaching the best technology related to ecology and sustainable energy. www.habanalabs.org

-Kid's Corner

The Kid's Corner is a weekend program that teaches children about the planet and community through free hands-on workshops. www.habanaoutpost.com

Create

Habana Outpost is committed to fostering creativity by providing a stage for artists of all mediums to express themselves. The Outpost currently hosts the following programs:

-Art at the Outpost

Monthly art installations showcasing Brooklyn's best painters and photographers

-The Market at Habana Outpost

Weekend outdoor market where local artisans can set up shop and sell their latest designs.

-Fashion Shows

Once a week, the Outpost's courtyard is turned into a fashion house as fashion designers are given the chance to see their creations on an outdoor runway.

-The Lowpost

In 2008 the Outpost will open The Lowpost, which is space that will be dedicated to live performances, movie screenings and community group meetings and much more
